On the Side.

Judging by the news from Edmonton, those old-time gloom abasers Peter Dawson and Johnny Walker are likely to again be prominent in society.

A well-known Assembly man was canvassing his constituents on Saturday regarding the quantity of liquor a man should have on hand under the new Act. He quit when one Maritimer told him he thought "a gallon a week would be about right—pot-vidin' there was no the around."

Sam says another thing that makes the author pity the cow is that she has two horns and can't blow either of 'em.

There is a Stony Plain man who claims he never sweats unless the local paper doesn't come.

This is a funny world—when two trains come together they call it a collision; when two kids come together we call them twins.

When a subscriber gets offended and stops his paper because the Editor won't run it the way he wants, it doesn't mean the subscriber loses interest in the paper, as the Editor noticed an ex-subscriber standing up in the Postoffice last Thursday perusing a improved Sun.

Only a few days left in which to plan what you're going to do with the extra day in February, says an exchange. Well, maybe so, but how about planning to the masquerade dance in Stony, in the evening.

Sporting Notes.

A very good practice game of hockey was held this afternoon at the 24th on the local rink, between the two local teams. The ice was soft and slush, preventing a good exhibition of the game. The winning team by 4 goals to 3. Seniors line up: E. Zucht, Steckle, Walker, Chesser, Smith, Laird.

Junior: Heichen, Umash, Moyse, Jory, Ali, Johnny Miller.

Harvey Frickish captured in a very satisfactory manner.

Cos Umash, both in goal at the last game and out on the ice this game, proved himself the star of his team, and will be worth watching as a hockey player.

Eric taken his team down to the 24th on March 2d, to cross sticks with Albert Rie's team.

Stony's Junior hockey team travelled up to Wainman on Saturday to play, but owing to an accident to the team they didn't have time to leave the station before the down train came along. The team goes up again next Saturday afternoon.

Municipal District Elections

LOCAL NEWS.

Mr. J. Davidson returned on Saturday from a motor trip East.

Johnny Elberhart, Brule, spent the week end at the home of his parents.

Wm. Robertson, secretary of the Alberta Fair Ass'n, is in attendance today at the convention in Edmonton of delegates from all over the province.

School Inspector Fife was in Stony on Tuesday.

Mr. J. J. Jaffer was visiting friends in the City on Monday.

His friends here will regret to learn that Mr. Lancaster, the popular young banker, will not return to Stony, having secured a position in the Calgary branch of the Bank of Commerce.

Mr. John L. Hollinshead, teacher at the local school, is said to have handed in his resignation to the Board.

The local Government Farm applied for purchase. This morning the Government had to Edmonton Stockyards.

Services were resumed at the Methodist church on Sunday last, as the pastor, Rev. P. E. Wilson, had recovered sufficiently from his recent illness to take charge.

Business is so good at present on this division of the Canadian National Ry. that another shift has been inaugurated at the local station, thus keeping 10 men on duty all around the clock.

The unusual book building in town is said to have been rented by an Edmonton lawyer who will use the lower floor as offices and has rented the upper upstairs to a local banker.

The dance given Friday night in Stony by the W. I. was fairly well attended. The music was the best heard in Stony for several years, and those present had a good time. The same orchestra will be present at the masquerade dance tomorrow night.

Some half-dressed grain cars arrived Friday for the local elevators and relieved the situation somewhat, as the elevators were pretty well filled up by that time, and grain hauling by the farmers had recommenced. The Grange Elevator has 25,000 bushels of wheat in the annex and the bins in the main building are filling rapidly.

Wheat And Cattle Trade Of West

The future of Western Canada—and that means the future of all Canada—depends upon what the future holds for the success of farming. The success of farming depends upon remedying conditions which today operate to leave no margin of profit between costs of production and prices obtainable in world markets. The truth of these statements must be recognized by anybody who gives the subject even a superficial study.

It may be open to question whether, for some years to come until world conditions become more settled, any materially higher prices for our large exportable surplus of grain and cattle will be obtainable. But the desired results, namely, a larger return for the producer, can unquestionably be secured through a reduction in costs of production and marketing.

Following the defeat of the Reciprocity Agreement with the United States which provided for the free entry of Canadian wheat and cattle into that country, the United States enacted a new and higher tariff which amounts almost to a practical prohibition of export to the south. During the war, however, Europe took everything Canada could produce and at high prices. But the war also enormously increased anything the farmer had to buy and boosted freight rates to unheard of levels, thus raising all costs of production and marketing.

While prices of grain and cattle have declined to pre-war levels, costs of labor and articles entering into the work of agricultural production, and costs of marketing, have not declined in anything like the same ratio, and with his products practically excluded from the United States, the Western farmer or livestock producer finds himself dependent upon the war-impoorished, tax-burdened, currency-depreciated countries of Europe. It is little wonder that the industry of farming is in the doldrums.

Efforts have been made to improve the situation. For many years the British Government maintained an embargo on Canadian cattle, but so long as our cattle could be sent to the United States this did not so much matter, although it was a drawback and constituted a loss. Persistent efforts resulted in the British embargo being removed. What happened? The rate on cattle from Montreal to Liverpool which was $15 a head was jumped to $25 a head, thus robbing the Western livestock producer of much of the benefit he stood to gain through entry into the British market.

Under the stress of war conditions railway freight rates had been increased, and as one step to that end the Crow's Nest Pass agreement was suspended. In 1922 that suspension was ended and the lower rates on grain from the prairies to the head of the lakes again came into effect. But at once lake freight rates were advanced to such an extent as to largely offset the reduction in rail rates, thus leaving the farmer in a position of "as you were."

These are but two examples of conditions which are operating to retard Western progress and development. The fact that farming and livestock production are not profitable enterprises in Western Canada at the present time is not the fault of the country or of the producers. That the country itself is all right is demonstrated by a 450,000,000-bushel wheat crop last year, and by the fact that livestock is today a drag on the market. The farmers and breeders have done their part, and the country can, and does, produce. It is man-made laws, systems and corporations that are at fault. They can and must be remedied, the obstacles removed, freedom in trade established, the shackles struck off and the barriers removed from transport and commerce.

The Dominion Parliament can right these abuses. It is now in session. Canada owns and operates more than one-half the railway mileage in the Dominion. Canada owns and operates an ocean merchant marine of scores of vessels. Furthermore, as Sir Clifford Sifton pointed out in his recent address at Winnipeg, the harbors of the world are filled with ships that have nothing to do and that can be rented, hired, chartered, without the slightest trouble.

The prevailing hold-up of the Western producer can be stopped at once if Parliament will but make up its mind to do it. Parliament can also, without doing injury to any other class or industry, remove the cost of the implements essential to Western production. These simple economic reforms would quickly revolutionize the Western situation, and with returning prosperity here the wheels of industry throughout Eastern Canada would also begin to revolve and give employment as in past years.

The resulting activity and prosperity, encouraging all-round development of natural resources, would be the fruit of all possible immigration policies. The present policies have been tried long enough and have failed. Give the new policy a trial by removing present hampering restrictions.

A Health Secret

It is frequently claimed by physicians that nine-tenths of all human ills may be traced to neglect to keep the bowels regular and the liver and kidneys active.

The result is an accumulation of poisons in the system which cause pain and ache and give rise to such dreaded diseases as appendicitis, Bright's disease, diabetes, high blood pressure, etc.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the ideal regulators of these vital organs because they act directly on the liver, kidneys and bowels, and ensure a thorough cleansing of the system.

You will notice that while the price of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills has been increased to 35 cents, the box now contains 35 pills instead of 25 as formerly.

Likewise Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is 50 cents a box of 50 pills, instead of 30 cents a box of 30 pills. Edmonson, Bohn & Co. Ltd., Toronto.

The Meaning of Success

Not Necessary to Acquire Wealth in Order to be Successful

Success, like everything else in this life, is a state of mind. I mean by this that one person may possess worldly goods in abundance and still be poor in spirit, while another person might have no material wealth to speak of, yet be rich in those qualities of the mind which mean the substance of wealth in reality. If all of us could bring ourselves to know this truth we could all be happier.

Success in life does not necessarily mean the acquisition of money. Success may mean a number of different things to a number of different people. To some it means contentment; to some, the accomplishment of a certain definite purpose in life; to others, money.

Money is not to be despised. There is a verse in the Bible which reads: "Money answereth all things." In a way, it does; but only in a way. One should never confuse business success with success in life. Most of all, success means achievement. We may reach our goal, or we may not. The real success lies in trying.

NERVOUS INDIGESTION

Some of Its Causes and How Relief May Be Obtained

Many people suffer from nervous indigestion. The commonest causes are worry, over-work, lack of exercise, or a general run down condition of the system. It is a disease of the nerves rather than of the digestive organs, and is corrected by giving needed nourishment to the nervous system and building up the blood.

The treatment consists largely in rest, recreation and the use of a true tonic such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In addition, the patient should follow a careful diet, and avoid coffee and stimulants, these being unsuitable for nervous people. As one's nerves rely for nourishment upon the blood, the latter must be built up and made rich and pure, which is just what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do. If there is loss of weight and pallor, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are especially helpful. Mrs. Adolphus Villeneuve, R.R. No. 2, Apple Hill, tells as follows how she obtained relief:—"I was so bad with nervous indigestion that I could not digest anything I took, and as a consequence was a great sufferer. I doctored for four months, but seemed to be getting worse instead of better. I lost strength to such an extent that I could hardly go about. Then my mother came to see me, and urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I followed her advice and got a supply at once. After taking a few boxes I felt my strength returning, and I continued their use until at the end of a few months I could eat anything I desired, had regained my old time health and strength, and was in every way a well woman. I am so thankful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me that I always advise their use when any of my friends are run down or ailing."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

They tell of a strange case in a small Missouri town. A man complained of pains in his head. His physicians removed his teeth, but the pains continued. # Outline Of Provisions Of New Immigration Policies Adopted By Federal Government Policies which have just been adopted for the selection, transportation and maintenance of British settlers have been outlined by Mr. James A. Mack, Minister of Immigration and Colonization. They include arrangements for co-operation with the federal government in contributing to the transportation expenses of selected settlers by means of a loan in the case of children. An amendment is also made that a Land Settlement Branch has been organized in the colonization arm of the Department of Immigration and Colonization to ensure that new settlers will be directed to lands where they can have the best opportunities of success, and to safeguard them from exploitation in the purchase of farms which they buy.

Provision is made for enlarging the scope of the nominated passage arrangement for the benefit of residents in Canada who are personally acquainted with persons whom they wish to nominate.

The agreement which has just been completed with the Imperial Government provides for financial assistance to three types of British settlers, namely children, nominated persons and household workers. The amount of such assistance is limited, in the case of children who have not reached their seventeenth birthday, to a grant not exceeding their transportation to destination in Canada. Assistance may be given to "nominated persons" in the form of a loan, repayable while out of interest, not exceeding the total cost of transportation to the first destination in the United Kingdom to the rail destination in Canada. Similar assistance in the form of a loan is provided for household workers, with the additional provision that at the end of twelve months from date of arrival in Canada a refund of £6 shall be made to each female household worker who has remained for that period on a farm in Canada and who has meantime satisfactorily paid the instalments on her loan.

Persons may be nominated for assistance under the nominated passage scheme by British subjects already resident in Canada, by the Dominion Government or any of its agents, or by any provincial government in Canada or its agents.

Of particular importance is the fact that under the new arrangements persons in Canada wishing to nominate residents of Great Britain to receive assistance as provided under the agreement with the British Government need not now be personally acquainted with the nominee. Nomination papers may be obtained from any Dominion or Provincial Government agent and may be submitted to the manager of any district board, who will forward them to officials of the Department of Immigration and Colonization at Ottawa who will arrange with representatives in Great Britain to select a suitable immigrant and fill in his name on the nomination.

Loans made to single men and women are repayable in quarterly instalments and must be repaid within one year from landing in Canada. Loans made to married men will be repaid by the Dominion Government and must be repaid within three years of arrival in Canada. Only persons who have been approved by officials of the Dominion Government and Imperial Government will be eligible for assistance, either by loan or grant. The cost of assistance will be borne equally by the Dominion Government and the Imperial Government but each government will bear the own expenses in administering its share of the undertaking.

In addition to this agreement with the Imperial Government for selection and maintenance of immigrants, said Mr. Mack, "we are providing for their reception and settlement in Canada, along the lines most likely to ensure their becoming successful Canadians. This will be accomplished by means of a Land Settlement Branch of the Department of Immigration and Colonization, whose duty it will be to see that new settlers are directed to lands where they can have the best opportunities of success and to safeguard them from exploitation in the purchase price of farms which they buy."

The Land Settlement Branch will be organized, in each of its divisions, by Advisory Settlement Boards, composed of outstanding men of business and farm men, and agriculturalists, who will base on the suitability of land and the fairness of the purchase price of all privately owned lands listed with the branch. They will advise the departmental officials on the distribution of settlement, that is, having regard to local problems, on the number and typical settler which can be most readily assimilated in any particular locality. Through their influence and facilitation, it is hoped to start community welfare associations in those districts where new settlement is coming in to considerable numbers.

The new branch is already engaged in a survey of farm employment opportunities, and will advise in providing farm employment and also household workers for service on the farms.

Revenue Stamp Returns

An Annual Income of $4,000,000 Is Expected

Annual income of over four million dollars is the revenue estimate of Canada and a corresponding loss to the Post Office Department is estimated to result from the exclusive use of revenue stamps of postage stamps on cheques, receipts, etc. The change became effective on October 1 and in the first month an increased revenue return of $447,000 was shown. This, however, was abnormal as there was a stocking up with stamps. The increase since October has averaged about $250,000 per month.

In the rural districts of Australia many of the horses wear cowhide shoes.

Grande Prairie

This town, although 200 miles north of Edmonton, is described as the "Grande Prairie." The 100 houses of Grande Prairie, four hundred miles from a town, has just arrived through its first winter carnival with success beyond words.

We expect to see the first winter carnival, high hunters, big game and polo riders to be ready to see and enjoy.

We hardly expect them to have a leisurely repast of waiting four hundred (that) makes some of the things they do. Nor did we expect to find an orchestra under a Russian violinist with old army experts on brass and wood.

We looked at the programme and read such vocal selections as "I Daclo," "Mendelssohn's 'Rover,'" the Ave Maria from Gounod, "Stanzas," "Love Divine," etc. The programme numbers as the Liebestraum, a cycle from the Liszt, also the Mendelssohn overtures in duet form. Violin solos by Knecht, Albrecht and Pelletier.

Last year's Community Choir took up excellent songs, such as "The Star of Bethlehem," "The Star of Bethlehem," etc., even the "Star of Bethlehem" to the echoes of the "Star of Bethlehem." This or a similar work may come later.

A lecture on music by a lady teacher of the district was given in addition well filled, the musical illustrations being of the first rank.

The High School furnished an orchestra for all minor events, the Grande Prairie Orchestra under A. B. Hedman (late of Boston), being reserved for heavier programmes. The High School has a staff of five talented teachers, two talented instructors in singing on the staff, also a dramatic instructor of first rank.

The town boasts a very large rink, splendid skating rink, golf links for the summer, shooting range and splendid race track.

Above all, say industrious people, who despite hard times keep the five banks there busy.

Expected That Corn Crop Will Soon Revolutionize Farming Methods In West

Crow's Nest Pass Rate

Question Will Again Come Before Parliament This Session

Another Crow's Nest Pass rates question will come before Parliament this session. In 1913 the House, at the end of an exhaustive inquiry and much agitation, political and otherwise, restored the rates of the Crow's Nest Pass agreement with the Canadian Pacific Railway in so far as they applied to grain and grain products, but continued them in other respects for two years. The Canadian National lines, while not a party to the agreement, were incidentally affected. Unless Parliament legislates in the matter by further extending the jurisdiction of the railway commission the Crow's Nest Pass rates on other commodities besides grain and grain products will automatically be reverted to on July 6 next. That is the date when the commission's present authority, notwithstanding any agreements, will run out.

The new list to be affected is principally livestock, fruit and barley, being wheat.

While grain is the big item in the agreement, it is calculated that a revision to the Crow's Nest rate on the other commodities would mean a reduction of revenue of at least $2,000,000 yearly to each of the companies. Both of the railways with the commission's authority extended while the interests that advocated the old rate on grain want it applied to the remaining articles of the list. The matter is not without its political angle and considerable speculation obtains over the outcome. If nothing is done the rates will come in force automatically.

In the month of November, 1913, the town of Maple Creek, Saskatchewan, for years the centre of great cattle and horse ranching activities had lately of a spontaneous wheat-growers' idea, staged the first provincial corn show to be held in Western Canada. This was the first public evidence, to be given to the world at large that the corn belt has shifted north, and that, in the words of the Federal Minister of Agriculture, who was present, "a new era of agriculture had dawned for the prairie provinces." The fact that such a show in the area was held to be justified, did to draw as interested spectators a host of government, railway and other public authorities, is sufficient indication of the culture of corn having reached a definite and important place in the agricultural life of Western Canada.

Corn has been grown in Western Canada on a small scale ever since the "spoon" variety, developed further south, was found by the Green River, Assiniboia and Blackfoot Indians, well adapted to the earlier summer and earlier frosts of the northern plains, but it was not until 1919 that the corn crop began to be considered even as a possibility in Saskatchewan or its sister provinces. In 1919 it was estimated that six thousand acres in Saskatchewan had been planted to corn, gradually all this for the first time in the history of the province.

The anticipated renewal of deep-sea shipments to England with the removal of the embargo and the growing popularity of dairying, stimulated the production of corn as a staple crop. Within five years Saskatchewan's corn crop increased from 6,500 acres to 11,000 acres. At first, practically all the seed corn was imported from the western states, but from now on, a considerable proportion will be grown in Western Canada, and both Manitoba and Alberta are looking to Saskatchewan for seed corn. New strains which ripen earlier are being developed, and plans are being considered for forming corn pools to be operated on a co-operative basis for grading, drying and marketing the seed corn.

All of which explains the first Western Canadian provincial corn exhibition at Maple Creek. There were over five hundred entries of corn, most of them of the three varieties which have been found best adapted to conditions in Western Canada, North Dakota Flint, Gels Yellow Flint and North-Western Dent.

Professor Chappin, of the University of Saskatchewan, and formerly Professor of Field Husbandry at the North Dakota Agricultural College, who judged the show, declared that the whole exhibit was far superior to the North Dakota corn exhibit for the Chicago Hay and Grain Show he had prepared four years before coming to Saskatchewan. He admitted having believed, at that time, that the corn belt stopped short with the international boundary, but he had been proved to him that just as fine corn could be matured and ripened in the Prince Albert district, in the extreme north of the province, as across the line.

There is no doubt but that corn has come to stay in Western Canada. The days of experiment are past and corn has become a staple crop, growing in possibility in each year, as is shown by the phenomenal rate at which its acreage is increasing. Consequently, it is revolutionizing Western Canadian farming methods. A little has now become the familiar adjunct of most Western Canadian farms and the effect is being felt in the cattle and dairying industries.

Fortunately, corn production has once more proven the great versatility of Canadian soil and climate and the wide latitude of production possible. One cannot but agree that the first provincial corn show at this area marks a new step in its agriculture.

IN THE LAND OF THE LOBSTICK

All the attention is and about the Fox, Manitoba, are "hot up" over the chances of their location in the annual dog derby contest, which this year is to be run on March 11. They're talked dogs and dog teams with they are about black in the face and they have compared them to their horses. They tried out the course in various directions.

And second in importance to the chance of the 20-mile grid, is the chance of the Central Queen's race for which many Manitoba hounds are working hard, in order that they may earn the honor of being queen of the dog derby contest.

Photograph shows three of the strong contenders for this year's honor. The upper team is that of C. H. Morgan, which captured the honors last year and is again very much in the running; centre photograph is that of "Whisper" Haddock and his race which were named in The Fox derby last year and striving for first place in 1914; and lower photograph is that of Earl Brydges' racing team.

Special dog arrangements have been made by the Canadian National Railway for the benefit of those from outside points attending the Winter Carnival.

No morning passed without agent after agent coming to the door with something to sell, and my heart ached for them, for in so many cases one could see plainly the evidences of actual need. One night when we were at dinner a man came asking for food or money—every little I swallowed seemed to choke me; even if he were an impostor there must have been many who were not.

And, saddest of all, the morning I spent in the office with Maudie, a girl came looking for work, a girl of not more than twenty, not dressed warmly enough for the time of the year but carrying herself gallantly. She had, she told Maudie, put an advertisement in the papers, and answered many others, but without success. And now she was going from one office to another, on the chance of picking up something. She was far from home, and she did not have the price of a railway ticket. "And besides," she explained, "the folks at home do not know that I was let out. Dad has no crop this year and I can't ask him for help so long as there is a chance of my finding work."

How Maudie drew all this out I do not know, but in any event it was a lucky day for that girl when she walked into the office of Jones & Jones, and one shudders to think of what might have happened had Maudie not taken her up. Work had to be made for her, but the girl never knew that her pay for indexing architectural magazines and clippings came out of what Maudie calls, with a crooked smile, her "troussseau fund."

If I have ever given anyone to understand that Maudie, because she is not a shining light in society, is not the dearest and best and most useful girl that ever lived I wish to take it back now, and to put it on record that she has developed into one of the finest and most helpful women I have ever been my privilege to know.

And Leslie Ormrod is one of the most discerning of men. Maudie told me all about her poor little romance one night after my first visit to Deer Lodge.

It was much as I had surmised, even to Maudie's inability to see that what she was doing was anything out of the ordinary. To her the only wonder was that Leslie should have grown to care for her as he did, it was merely a commonplace that she should give him her whole-hearted devotion.

Though I had been to a measure prepared for a great change, Leslie's face haunted me for hours. I saw him first, as it happened, on one of his bad days when, weary after a sleepless night, he had scarcely the strength to speak to me. The second time I went to the hospital he was much better and I found him the old jolly Leslie, interested in all that I could tell him about the members of our old circle, teasing Maudie, and almost making us forget his pale-fortured eyes and whitening hair. The contrast between him and Maudie was startling, and it came to me with a flash of insight that she actually gave him of her fine, wholesome strength as she sat, taking little part in the conversation, where he could see her without turning his head. It was like something one reads about, not quite, canny. That he was almost childishly dependent on her was evident, even through all his nonsense. That more than anything else showed how broken he was, for in the old days he had been more than a trifle autocratic—a young man rejoicing in his strength to an extent that Margaret Anne had always somewhat regretted.

They were, Maudie told me, properly engaged, "though Mother thinks I am foolish to call it that and more foolish still to think of marrying him." "You do think of it?" I asked, seeing that Maudie expected the question. "Yes," was the reply. "He is beginning to talk of going home to for the good. If the doctors decide that he may be moved with safety I shall go with him. He wishes it, and it is all that I can do for him."

I had tea one afternoon at the Clarendon with Mrs. Fenwick, a very happy and prosperous-looking Mrs. Fenwick who was, however, most eager to hear all my news and not at all loathe to confess that she would be glad to see the last of May.

"My old lady is a dear," she said, "and I am taking a really miserly pleasure in my savings account. But you may tell Owen that I'll be home in time to look after her—all the money in the Bank of Montreal could not keep me here once spring comes."

Not so pleasant as my chat with Mrs. Fenwick was my encounter with Lilah Armstrong, whom I met one morning in Eaton's. I was provided with a perfectly good excuse for not accepting her invitation to dinner the following night, for I had every minute engaged, but she insisted that we should go up to the Grill for a cup of tea. I could not refuse, though I felt sure that what she desired was not so much my company as the opportunity to learn the result of her summer's fun.

Naturally I took a wicked satisfaction in talking around what she wished to hear until in desperation she came to the point herself.

"I suppose Jim Cameron told you that he had come to see me when he was passing through the city," she said.

"No," I replied, "he does not write to me."

I did not think it necessary to tell her that he had written to Murray two or three times.

"I did not think he would have the nerve to come," she went on. "When I asked him to call if he was ever in town I did not think for a minute that he'd do it. It was rather awkward, too, for I had other company that evening."

"Jim would naturally think that you meant the invitation after you had been so friendly last summer," I said. Lilah shrugged her shoulders.

"A girl has to be amused," she said, "and I love to plague Jean. Ever since we were little girls that prim, dignified way of hers has raised the very Old Nick in me. I wonder if she and Jim will make it up now that I am out of the way?"

The last sentence was more than I could stand.

"Did it ever occur to you," I asked, "that Jean might not feel inclined to take back what you have spoiled? Jim never was good enough for her, and after his allowing you to make such a fool of him I would not blame Jean if she refused to have anything more to do with him. She is too fine and sincere herself to suspect the truth—that Jim's apparent infatuation was nine-tenths your doing—and if she ever finds it out I hope she will be too proud to forgive him."

"What a fuss over nothing," remarked Lilah calmly. "I'm sure I never wanted him, and if Jean did she should have kept him. It's all in the game, and if she doesn't know the rules she shouldn't play."

"She does not play," I said. "It was you who did the playing—you and poor, hot-headed Jim. He, I am certain, thinks as much of Jean as he ever did, it was just because he was jealous of Mr. Macleod and resentful of Mrs. Mowbray's disapproval that he fell in with your idea of amusement. And if he isn't thoroughly ashamed of himself by this time I do not know Jim Cameron."

"Well," Lilah broke in abruptly, "it's nothing to lose one's temper over, is it?"

I picked up the bill, paid it, and got away as quickly as I could, sitting inside, as Murray describes it. How that girl can be Mrs. Mowbray's niece and Jean's cousin is more than I can understand.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

Maudie and Mrs. Jones both urged me to stay with them for another week, but nothing on earth could have induced me to change my plans. It was not that I had not enjoyed my holiday as the full, but I was so overjoyed to have found my feet that, to use a very funny metaphor, I wanted to try them at once.

And this is what I had discovered:—That Winnipeg and Herrington's Hope each had something for me that the other could not give, that while there was a deep satisfaction in the very atmosphere of the city streets the memory of our little home in its quiet beauty tagged at my heart, making me realize that in Murray's dreams of a country home from which we might occasionally share the advantages of the city there lay the solution for people of our sort.

I loved the casual contact with humanity that the city afforded, the man-made beauty that carries its own appeal, the sense that one is a part of all human endeavor. But I hated the crowded houses, the cruel contrast of rich with poor, the shallow frivolity and—sifting after amusement that covered so much of discontent and disappointment. After being away from the city for a while I had brought a new point of view to bear upon it, seeing things that I had never seen before, and it seemed to me that, laying aside non-essentials, one could be equally happy in the country—happier, I thought, than in the city.

I said something of the sort to Maudie and she nodded understandingly. "It is what is inside and not what is outside that counts, isn't it?" she said. "We are all restless these days, so restless that only a few of the wisest people know what they really want. That was why I enjoyed my visit at Herrington's Hope so much, you and Murray were so happy and contented, and so hopeful for the future, that I felt rested all over."

Had A Weak Heart Was Very Nervous For Three Years

Miss Jessie Peterson, Zealandia, Sask., writes:—"I wish to let you know how much good Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me."

For nearly three years I was very badly run down, had a weak heart, and was so nervous that sometimes I would almost faint away.

I heard of many people who had recommended your Heart and Nerve Pills, so I decided to give them a trial. After I had used two boxes I found they had done me good, and after having taken five boxes I was completely relieved.

I cannot recommend your Pills enough, and I would advise anyone having a weak heart or troubled with nervousness to use them."

Widespread Sale of Tanlac

Consistent Advertising in Newspapers Given Large Share of Credit for Phenomenal Success

Atlanta, Ga. — (Special). — International Proprietaries, Inc., manufacturers and distributors of Tanlac, have announced that the year just closed was one of the most profitable ones in the history of the company. At the same time they announced that the sales of Tanlac had passed the 10-million bottle mark.

Executives of the company attribute the great success of Tanlac to three things: Merit of the tonic, co-operation on the part of wholesale and retail druggists, and a consistent advertising campaign, the greater part of which was concentrated in newspapers.

During the past four years this company has spent over $1,000,000 per year in advertising. Plans for 1924 call for an increased appropriation. Additional newspaper space will be used and additional papers added to the list of 7,000 now used.

Tanlac was first introduced in America over eight years ago. It immediately attracted attention as a reconstructive stomachic tonic and the demand was phenomenal from the first. Gradually Tanlac was introduced into every state in the union and to Canada, Mexico, Cuba and Porto Rico.

During the latter part of the year three manufacturing laboratories have been erected in South America to care for the business there. These are in addition to plants operated in America, Canada and Mexico.

"The year just closed has been a most successful one for our company," said D. M. Millard, Vice-President and General Manager. "We attribute the record breaking year to three principles: The proven merit of our tonic; the splendid co-operation of our jobbers, and the retail druggists who recognize that it pays to handle advertised goods; and last, but not least, to a systematic advertising campaign. We are firm believers in newspaper advertising and the great bulk of our appropriation was spent for newspaper space. We use some 7,000 newspapers in this country and Canada at present."

"We have recently completed a survey of business conditions throughout the country and believe that 1924 will be a prosperous year, not only for our company, but for other businesses as well."

"We have made our plans for increased business and have adopted an advertising appropriation that will be one of the largest in the country. Our faith in newspaper advertising is based on experience. We have passed the experimental stage and we do not hesitate to place our order on newspapers as the best medium for advertising our product."

Cold From the Air

Aeroplane With Its Precious Cargo Makes Forced Landing

One of these days it may rain gold. A French commercial aeroplane, which left Croydon with 500 kilograms of gold (ingots and coins), was forced by bad weather to come down at the emergency landing ground at Polz (Somme).

The gold, which was being dispatched by a London bank to Switzerland, says Reuter, was sent on to Le Bourget by motor car, where it passed the customs in the ordinary way.

Eight aeroplanes have flown from Dakar to Bamako in West Africa. Six went on as far as Timbuctou, in the Sahara.

This was altogether a journey of 1,400 miles, and five hours were made.

To Revive Trade

Purchasing Power of Farmers Must Be Restored at Once

That there can be no great industrial revival until the farmers' purchasing power is restored by a proper balance of commodity prices, was the opinion expressed by President J. L. Stansell, of Staffordville, Ont., of the Canadian Breeders' Association, in his address at the annual meeting of the association in Toronto. This restoration, he stated, may involve a lowering of transportation costs and a lowering of prices of all goods that ordinarily find a market on the farm.

Vanished After Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"Branchton, Ont. — "When I wrote to you for help my action was mostly prompted by curiosity. I wondered if I, too, would benefit by your medicine. It was the most profitable action I have ever taken. I heartily assure you, for through its results I am relieved of most of my sufferings. I have taken six boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, and I can honestly say I have never been so well before. I had suffered from pains and other troubles since I was fifteen years old, and during the 'Great War' period I worked on munitions for two years, and in the heavy lifting which my work called for, I strained myself, causing pelvic inflammation from which I have suffered untold agony, and I often had to give up and go to bed. I had doctored for several years without getting permanent relief, when I started to take your medicines." — Mrs. GOLDWIN MISENER, Branchton, Ont.

FEDERAL INQUIRY IS EXPECTED IN HOME BANK CASE

Ottawa.—The Home Bank case is being considered by the government in anticipation of the subject being one of the first brought in parliament. When it is, an announcement of policy will be made. In the meantime all documents that bear on the case and its history are being gathered up and digested.

There is reason to believe that the government does not, at this juncture, plan to go to the aid of the affected depositors, but rather takes the position that an inquiry into all the facts of the case, antecedent, as well as the immediate, causes, should be a preliminary to a decision whether or not anything is to be done in the matter.

Under the auspices of the Bankers' Association, a curator made an investigation, but while this disclosed the condition of the bank at the time of suspension, there was little that went behind and unrooted basic transactions. Meanwhile the record has been added to by statements from the former minister of finance and others, all of which is taken to supply the demand for an inquiry. What form it will take is not certain. Parliamentary investigation might turn out to be a political one, and is not commonly favored, but some sort of inquiry is likely to be undertaken.

Would Probe Livestock Epidemic in Britain

London.—Noel Buxton, minister of agriculture, moving in the House of Commons, the second reading of an amendment to the Diseases of Animals Act, with a view to the prevention of another serious outbreak of foot and mouth disease such as has recently affected many farms in this country, announced that it was proposed to appoint a committee for scientific research into the foot and mouth disease. Sir Charles Sherrington, president of the Royal Society, will be chairman of the committee, Mr. Buxton stated.

Pensions For Widows

Plan May Be Possible Later, Says Philip Snowden

London.—A private member's motion to provide state pensions for widows with children, or mothers whose family bread winner is incapacitated, drew a sympathetic reply in the House of Commons from Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, who, however, said the government at present was unable to provide the necessary £20,000,000 annually, which would be required to finance the scheme, out of pocket of the other schemes of social reform to which the government was committed. He declared that if given time to overhaul the national finances, this would be one of the first measures in which he would apply the resources which might then become available.

Closing of Rural Schools

A Government Correspondence School Is Suggested in Manitoba

Winnipeg.—A government correspondence school system, through which elementary education could be given should be instituted in Manitoba in view of the closing of so many public schools, according to Mayor R. J. Swain, of St. Boniface. This would assist greatly the children now without schooling and might become a permanent institution, a real economy, which he believed would be the result, could be obtained.

Today, there are 121 rural schools closed, affecting approximately 3,000 children, according to latest official figures. A system could be inaugurated similar to that of the large correspondence schools and a nominal fee could be charged to cover expenses for books, papers, etc.

Plan to Bring Many British Women to Canada

Montreal.—Successful has been the immigration of British women to Canada during the past year, that the special women's branch in London, England, of the Canadian Pacific Railway will increase its work during the coming year, beginning with the resumption of navigation to Quebec and Montreal. An announcement was made to this effect by colonization and steamship officials, who said parties of British women and girls would be arriving regularly throughout the coming season. About 20,000 women from the British Isles came to Canada last year, or about half the number of men.

Failed to Collect Taxes

Possibility of Vindication of What Is Termed Culpable Neglect

Ottawa.—Certain members of the government intimate that there is a possibility of a vindication of what they claim was the culpable neglect of the two previous administrations to collect income and business profits taxes, much of which will be lost to the country through such neglect, the Klondike case being given as an instance. It is intimated that a commission may be appointed to investigate some features of the methods by which such taxes were collected, and it is stated that the total number of assessments for the war profits tax was about 27,000, of which several thousand still await final adjudication and settlement. In no case has an appeal been taken to the exchequer court from the decisions of the taxation branch, the inference drawn being that the decision was always satisfactory to the firm assessed.

Average Return to Farmers Higher

Edmonton.—That the average cash return per farm in Alberta in 1932 was actually $18 higher than the average for the years 1918, 1919 and 1920 when grain prices were at their peak, was the striking statement of John M. Iorio, managing director of the Edmonton Journal in an address to the Commercial Club of the University of Alberta.

CLAIM ESTIMATES TO BE CUT BY MANY MILLIONS

Ottawa.—A very substantial saving in public expenditures will be indicated when the estimates for the coming fiscal year are brought before parliament at the coming session.

The government has been scrutinizing the projected outlays for the past two months, and many millions, it is estimated, are being lopped off with the idea of balancing revenue and expenditures. The expense of civil government or, in other words, the civil service, will show a considerable reduction, although not so much initially, as later in the year, when projected reforms are put into effect. Public works estimates are being cut to the bone, apart from carrying on works already under contract, and necessary items on maintenance.

In the railway department, the betterment of some twenty millions in the Canadian National Railway's finances will be cut down, correspondingly, the broad on the public exchequer. Home-voiced last year, which appears this time, but in aid of the provinces, for agricultural instruction, highways and housing. Mills estimates latterly have been kept down to the minimum, but this time again, considerable more is shaved off. Through the refunding of loans during the year a substantial saving in interest account will also be shown.

The agricultural department, not yet computed, but practically every department is reduced and the total will be many millions. When this year's budget comes down it will either be balanced or be very close to equilibrium between outlays and income.

CONVENTION OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES AT SASKATOON

Saskatoon.—More than 1,000 delegates were in attendance at the Saskatchewan School Trustees' Association convention here, and great interest was manifested in the proceedings.

"As a pioneer province the people of Saskatchewan have every reason to be proud of the facilities for education provided for the 178,314 pupils now attending our schools," said J. F. Bryant, president of the association in his annual address.

"The task of the department of education in providing school accommodation to keep pace with the rapid settlement of the province has been enormous," continued Mr. Bryant. "In 1918 the population of Saskatchewan was 51,279. Today it is in the neighborhood of 354,000. In 1905, when Saskatchewan was made a province, there were 594 school districts. Today there are 4,579 school districts with 5,721 school rooms in operation."

"When we think of the rapid settlement of the province, the pioneer conditions and the periods of general depression, and when we consider that most of the people started on the homestead with little capital, we cannot but be proud of what we have already achieved and of the determination of our people to give their children a good education."

Dr. Walter C. Murray, president of the University of Saskatchewan, spoke on "The High School for the Country," and described conditions as they appeared with regard to the way for high school education in rural districts while he was acting in the capacity of chairman of the royal commission appointed to make a general survey of the educational system of Manitoba.

The need for more general planting of fruit and shade trees and shrubs throughout Western Canada was emphasized by Theodore A. Torgeson, president of the Northern Nurserymen's Association and managing director of the Prairie Nurseries, Estevan.

John W. Dufee, editor of the Free Press, Winnipeg, spoke on "My Impressions Overseas." Mr. Dufee narrated his experiences in England while attending the Imperial Conference last year, and also told of his visit to the continent.

J. Reid, president of the Minnesota Farm Women's Federation, spoke on "Transportation Problems and Deep Waterways." He reviewed in detail the costs of the present transportation of wheat and other products, then pointed to the saving that would be effected by a water route from the head of the lakes to the seaboard.

Here and There

In the nearest competitive breeding circles from all important agricultural districts of the North American continent, Alberta farmers won 45 prizes at the recent international stock and grain show at Chicago. Two grand championships—swine, Major G. E. L. Strang and oats, J. W. Biglands—went to the province. Major Strang was an first with white field peas and Jameson Brothers, of Brooks, first with red clover seed. Major Strang's success is especially remarkable as he has only been a farmer four years.

The latest statements of the earnings and expenses of the Canadian National Railway show that the strong action of that organization has been well maintained, and that a steady improvement has been achieved in spite of the difficulties of the past few years. The figures for December show gross earnings of $1,121,674, working expenses of $754,448, and a net profit of $367, 226, an increase of $491,728 over that of December, 1922. The 1923 year's show gross earnings of $126,
37,027, working expenses of $156,
1,279 and a net profit of $69,475, 15, an increase of $1,177,215 over the total earnings of the road in 1922.
Net earnings for this year were the highest since 1917 and gross earnings the highest since 1920.

Panama Bathing Beauties

Twenty of these twenty-two children are girls whose ages range from seven to fourteen years, and they are not mere bathing beauties. From their infancy they have played in and around the water at Panama, and they now give regular exhibitions of their aquatic skill. The girl on the left of the rear row is a beach-athlete and crawl champion of the Panama Canal Zone and she is to take part in the Olympic Competitions. The photograph was taken after an exhibition before the passengers of the Canadian Pacific S.S. Empress of Canada, now on World Cruise.

Winter Sports at the Winnipeg Carnival

every at Winnipeg the red-blooded men and women of the prairie metropolis find other things to do besides sit bud-died over stoves and hot-ole neg-tives. They recognize that winter sport and snow makes possible delightful and healthful exercises with skis, snowshoes, and skates, not to forget the contact and honorable game they play "of snow and kisses."

be dedicated with the greater carnival which is being held at
